It's time to move on, please don't waste my tax dollars by tying up technology in the legal system. Let the software companies compete on their capabilities, not through lawyers. Microsoft has done more for computing than any another software company. When my 6 year old can be productive for homework on Windows and Office, this is a testimate to the abilities MS brings to society.

My family has not been "harmed" by pricing by Microsoft. I continue to derive greater and great value from the integration MS has achieved in their software products.

There are more important things for you to be concentrating on, like terrorism, security, education and how bad our immigration and power problems are. This is where we are getting ripped off. Even though I achieved the 20% discount for power all summer (do to conservation, buying florescent lighting, etc), my bill is radically higher than a year ago.

Fix the real problems....
